As the number who take much interest in genealogical researches is so small, there are but few persons who are aware of the difficulties and perplexities of collecting and arranging the genealogy of a family. Some families have but few records, others none at all; lists of names are found without dates, and in some instances dates of birth are purposely withheld. The following records are divided into two parts. The first part gives but glimpses of the name, without the connecting links, from 1183 to 1670 (the object being to trace the name of Bradley as far back as possible); while the second part gives an accurate record from 1631 to the present time.

The name was originally spelled Bradley, the change to Bradlee being made by Samuel Bradlee, who was recorded in the Dorchester records as the son of Nathan and Lydia Bradley, born Oct. 5, 1707, and on the monument erected to his memory, in the Dorchester burying-ground, as Mr. Samuel Bradlee, died July 7, 1768, aged 62, the y giving place to e. Family tradition has it that the Bradleys in Dorchester were so numerous that mistakes were made, to obviate which Samuel Bradley changed the final letter to e. The change in spelling applies also to John Bradley, the brother of Samuel, whose name is recorded on his tombstone as Bradlee.

The posterity of Samuel Bradlee, who are living, and bear the name at the present day, still retain this mode of spelling it. Other alterations were made about the same time, such as Breadley, and Bradly. In the second part I have endeavored to arrange what facts I could gather together of the descendants of Nathan Bradley, of Dorchester, Mass., so that they might not be entirely lost. In this endeavor I have been supported and encouraged by the assistance of my father, Nath'l B. Doggett, whose collection of dates of family history have been a stepping-stone to the following facts.

It will be seen that many families are but partially sketched, some errors, both in fact and date, may be found, and omissions detected, but as a whole the work may be relied on as substantially correct. For this correctness in a number of cases I am indebted to Mr. Nath'l J. and Rev. C. D. Bradlee, who have seconded the idea of a family history, and exerted themselves to make it as perfect as possible.

Mr. Wm. T. Eustis has also given me many facts; for which I would express my thanks.

Any additional information or correction will be thankfully received and preserved for the benefit of posterity.

HISTORY

BRADLEE FAMILY.

When two numbers occur before a name, they refer to the same two numbers reversed, following which whatever else that may be known of the person will be found.

PART I. 1183—1670.

THE earliest mention in England of the name of Bradley, which has come to my knowledge is in the year 1183, at the feast of St. Cuthbert, in Lent, when the Lord Hugh, Bishop of Durham, caused to be described all the revenues of his whole Bishopric.

This survey of Hugh Pudsey, called Bolton Buke, mentions in Wolsingham, which contains three hundred acres, Roger de Bradley, who holds forty acres at Bradley, and renders half a marc, besides forest service, to wit: forty days in the fawn season, and forty in the rutting season.

In 1437 there is mention made of Bradleys, of Bradley. In the will of Ralph Snaith, which was proved March 23, 1472 or '73, he mentions a farm had of Bradley. Again, in 1475, the will of Sir John Pilkington, Knight of Yorkshire, bequeaths to his brother Charles a place named Bradley. The name seems to have been applied to places in England at a comparatively early date; but from what source they sprung I have been unable to ascertain. At the present time there are in England a number of townships which bear the name in Cheshire, Lincolnshire, Derbyshire, Southampton, and Staffordshire, which is about the largest, containing three thousand three hundred and seventy-six acres.

There are also Great and Small Bradley parishes in Suffolk, and Lower and Upper, or Bradley Both, in Kildwick, Yorkshire.

John Bradley was Bishop of Shaftesbury in 1539.

In 1578 Alexander Bradley lives in the see of Durham, and about the same year Cuthbertus Bradley is curate of Barnarde Castle. The Bradleys of Acworth are the first who had their arms and pedigree preserved, and that by a visitation of the County of York by Wm. Dugdale, Nurroy King of Arms, in 1665 or '66.

The arms are, "Or—a fess azure, between three buckles gules," and are proved by the visitation of Berkshire. The first one mentioned in the pedigree is John Bradley, of , in County Ebor, an ensign in King Henry the Eighth's army, on his expedition to Bulloigne in France; then follows the pedigree, which may be seen in one of the publications of the Surtees Society.

His grandson, Thomas Bradley, was Doctor in Divinity and chaplain to King Charles the First, afterward prebend in the cathedral Church of York, and rector of Ackworth in County Ebor. He was 67 years, 7 months in August, 1665.

His son, Savile, was Fellow of Magdalen College in Oxford, and another son, Thomas, a merchant in Virginia. About this time the persecutions in England led many to emigrate to America, and this emigration so increased that a tax was levied on all those who left the country; but this, instead of decreasing the number of emigrants, led many to slip away by stealth, and thus leave no record of their departure. Among the original lists of emigrants, religious exiles, etc.,

I find no record of Bradleys who can be traced to our ancestors, although a number are mentioned as having embarked for America. These lists of course are very imperfect, and there are still many unpublished documents, which, when brought before the public, may help to mend the broken links in many family histories.

Among the early settlers of New England we find a number by the name of Bradley, who are probably descended from a common ancestor, as the same names are often repeated.

The following are the heads of a number of families of this name who settled in New England, the first mentioned being the only one the date of whose departure from England is known: —

DANIEL was born in 1615, in England, and came to this country in the ship "Elizabeth," from London, in 1635.

He married, May 21, 1662, Mary, daughter of John Williams, of Haverhill, where he resided; was killed by the Indians, Aug. 13, 1689. He had 7 children, one of whom, Daniel, married Hannah, and had children; Mary and Hannah, who were killed by the Indians, Mar. 15, 1697.

JOHN lived in Salem, married Catherine, moved to Dedham, then to Dorchester, where he had one child, Salathiel, who was born Mar. 16, 1642, and died at 6 weeks.

He died, June, 1642, and left a will, in which his wife and brother-in-law, William Allen, were mentioned.

One family of Bradleys, five brothers and one sister, settled in New Haven.

They were: —

1. WILLIAM, who married, Feb. 18, 1645, Alice Prichard, perhaps daughter of Roger, of Springfield. He had 8 children, and numerous descendants. Died in 1691.
2. ELLEN married John Alling.

3. DANIEL was sworn Freeman 1657, had wife but no children, and died Dec., 1658. His estate went, after the widow's portion, to his brothers and sister.
4. STEPHEN GUILFORD, at New Haven, sworn Freeman 1660, and married, Nov. 9, 1663, Hannah, daughter of George Smith, of New Haven, by whom he had 7 children.
He married for a second wife Mary, widow of William Leete, and died June 20, 1702.
5. JOSHUA was married, and had only Joshua, born Dec. 31, 1665; perhaps removed.
6. NATHAN lived at Guilford, married Esther , and had 6 children.

There were also in Connecticut: —

ISAAC, also of Branford, 1667, removed to New Haven in 1683, where his name was long continued by a multitude of descendants.

To return to Massachussetts, we find: —

He was a weaver and a fisherman; and, in 1753, was constable for the town of Dorchester, when it was recorded, that "removing out of Town John Beighton was hired to serve for ye whole Town." He removed to Boston, but was buried in the Old Dorchester Burying-ground, where, on a gravestone, erected to his memory, is the following inscription: —

Here lies the Body of Mr. Samuel Bradlee, who died July 7, 1768, aged 62 years.

Blessed are the Dead that die in the Lord, they rest from their Labour and their Works Follow them.

He married Mary Andrus, at whose decease the following lines were written: —

A FEW LINES OCCASIONED BY THE MUCH-LAMENTED DEATH OF MRS.
MARY BRADLEE, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE MAY 20, 1796.

Pardon the boldness of a mortal tongue
While it attempts to speak departed worth
That took its flight to Yon Celestial heights
Fond of its native home, and tired of Earth.

She's gone, and by this sad farewell
Has drawn from every eye a friendly tear
Down to the silent realms of death to dwell
In awful silence to be bury'd there.

Oh! cruel death, to boast thy haughty sway
O'er the frail body of a mortal worm.
To spend thy fury on a lump of clay,
And leave its friends in solemn grief to Mourn.

She with undaunted courage bore thy threats
And did at last thy baneful Sting defy.
While guilty Cowards for their lives intreat
A Christian hero, will not fear to die.

'Twas thou grim monster that did force her flight,
With rapid swiftness from these mortal shores.
Winging her way through fields of heavenly light
Far from this world of vanity she soars.

Faith thou transporting pilot of the mind
By thee we sail through seas of human woe,
Steering our course by thee are sure to find
The blissful port of rest to which we go.

Thou dear departed much-loved, pious friend.
Whose name exists in sweetest memory still
With Joy we think upon thy glorious end
Believing, thou art safe from every ill.

Thou did not like some untry'd soldier fly
At the first shot & quit the hostile ground,
But like a hero did thy courage try,
While more than fourscore years have roll'd around.

Thrice happy saint to find a sweet relief
From this vain world where briers chock the ground
Where every joy is check'd by sudden grief
And not one drop of lasting pleasures found.

Oh! would my maker clip this brittle thread
That holds my life in tedious bondage here
Joyful my soul would lift its infant head
And by thy compass try its course to steer.

Joyful with thee I'd quit this mortal stage
Where tragic scenes too often pain the eyes
And leave this theatre of mortal rage
Where sorrows grow & every pleasure dies.

Go on victorious saint to worlds of light,
Fly fearless through the boundless realms of space,
Should thou feel languid in thy lonesome flight
Sing a loud song to Everlasting grace.

'Twill raise thy spirits, rouse thy drooping Soul
Assisted by the influence from above.
Till thou shall safely reach the heavenly goal
Where all thy grief shall sink in seas of love.
